On October 4, 1993, President Clinton issued a directive to all executive branch departments and agencies ordering them to "renew their commitment to the Freedom of Information Act, to its underlying principles of government openness, and its sound administration." In particular, the President stressed that "the existence of bureaucratic hurdles has no place in its implementation." U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno's guidance on agency FOIA implementation issued the same day encourages "FOIA officers to make 'discretionary disclosures' whenever possible." Additionally, her guidance states that when exempting information from release, agencies should provide specific reference to "such harm" "reasonably foreseeable" to occur from release. In that U.S. relations with and policy toward Japan are of considerable public interest, I request that you exercise your discretion to secure maximum disclosure in response to this request.

Note: I request that all documents be reviewed in their entirety, and that no information be omitted on the grounds of "non-relevance".
